Rep. John Campbell Talks Washington With Newport Beach High School Students

Newport Beach, CA – While home in his congressional district last week, Congressman John Campbell took time to attend a meeting of the Junior Statesmen of America Club at Newport Harbor High School.

Invited to speak by the club's president, Nicolas Jaber, Campbell spoke candidly with the students about the decisions he made in life during and after high school that led him to public service. Transitioning to the topics the club had been discussing prior to his visit, he shared his perspective on recent congressional action and addressed what he expects to see on the floor of the House in coming weeks.

Answering a multitude of questions from the politically engaged group that often centered around America's current deficit and the budget debate in Washington, Campbell detailed his mission to turn the attention of his colleagues in Congress to the fast approaching fiscal crisis spurred on by unchecked deficit spending and the current trajectory of American debt.

"The growing debt," Campbell told the students, "Is the single most pressing threat to our security."

Campbell stayed through the lunch period to answer questions and to meet with individual students.
